

Colin Brown's research group principally uses electrophysiology and immunohistochemistry to determine how the brain controls birth, lactation, and cardiovascular function. The main focus of this group is on how oxytocin and vasopressin contribute to preterm labour, high blood pressure and heart problems.